Invites you to a one day seminar on

WOMEN IN INDIA: CHALLENGES OF INEQUALITIES

On 15th October 2016 Venue: Gram Geeta Bhavan, University Campus, Amravati Road Nagpur

The status of the women in India has always been the matter of discourse as well as concern. The progressive thinkers and right minded women and men have not just pointed out towards the unequal status of women vis a vis the men but also have mobilized public opinion in their favour and fought for the attainment of their rights in the society. The unequal positions of women in society have lead to their discrimination at all levels of social interaction be it opportunities of employment or education or excess to market or political institutions. They due to this have also been subjected to daily violence most of which is normalized by societal mores and traditions. The low status of women in the society has affected their living condition as well as their life chances. In a society which is differentiated by caste Women in India face double discrimination one of being a women and being a women of low caste.

The Association of Interdisciplinary Policy Research and Action has organized this seminar with the following objectives:

1. To stake stock of the status of women in India on the indicators identified as subthemes.
2. To address the question of inequalities of gender and the policy outcome.
